The Secret of Fresh Paint

This Tube and This Can

You know that freshness means goodness in paint. You know the trouble you've had in the past with stale, shelf-worn paint. It didn't run true to shade and probably took more to cover less surface. That is all done away with. When you buy B & V House Paint you mix it yourself under the Base & Tinter System and you know the paint is fresh—the color true and the spread and wear qualities there. The whole job of mixing simply consists in squeezing the tube of Tinter into the can of Base and presto, you've got real, fresh, fine paint—paint that you can depend on.

COOPER'S GROVE.

The mixed chorus of the Evangelical Lutheran St. John's church of Cooper's Grove wishes to announce an entertainment to be given under the auspices of the said organization at the village hall, Matteson, April 15 next, at eight o'clock.

The entire program will be repeated at Saenger hall, Tinley Park, on Sunday, April 18, at eight o'clock. As the members of the organization have diligently rehearsed the program, which consists of vocal dialogues, operettas and orchestra numbers, a treat is in store for those who wish to enjoy clear entertainment.

Youthful Solomon.
Hearing his father grumbling about the high price of coal, a small boy remarked quite solemnly: "I wouldn't buy any more of it if I were you, daddy—we only burn it."

VOTE RECOUNT MAY BE ASKED AT TINLEY PARK

Tinley Park, April 16.—As an aftermath of the hot election held here a week ago last Tuesday a dispute has arisen as to the number of votes which were discarded by some of the precincts in the township as defective. It is charged that more so-called defective votes were thrown out by the boards than should have been and as a result of this charge it is rumored that a recount will be demanded. This, of course, can only be done by permission of the court. As it would appear now it will be a case for court action if the matter is carried that far.

HIGH WAGES DRAW MANY.

Cook county is going to put up a new hospital and other county building at the Oak Forest infirmary. Work on the buildings will last all summer. Excavation work has been begun on the foundations and basements of the new buildings. The county is paying very fancy wages. Common laborers earn as high as $6.35 per day, while teamsters and drivers are getting $11 per day now and, it is said, will receive $12 per day after May 1. These high wages have drawn many workers from the entire surrounding country.

SCHOOL QUESTION AGITATED.

Tinley Park is facing the problem of a new school. The present two-room building is fast proving inadequate to handle the large number of pupils who are now attending the school. One teacher has 40 pupils in her room which is crowding the school room to capacity. A number of the tax payers of the village are considering the matter to bring it to a vote of the rest of the tax payers of the district in the near future. Oak Forest is agitating the matter of having a public school opened there. A large number of people from Chicago and other nearby places have purchased lots and are building homes. At present the nearest school is Tinley Park. There is a school in the neighborhood of Oak Forest.

ANOTHER NEW DIRECTOR.

It is understood that another new country life director is to be appointed by the county superintendent of schools, making six country life directors for the county.

SUGAR SOARING.

As a result of the railroad strike the sugar problem is getting to be a serious one. Local store keepers have been offered 25 cents a pound for all of their sugar holdings by other big dealers, but have refused to sell, wishing to keep their customers supplied with what little stock they have on hand now. It is said, that sugar will go to 50 cents a pound.

Potatoes are as scarce as the proverbial hen's tooth and the price is sky high. Potatoes that once sold at $1.50 per bushel are bringing that much for a peck now. There is a demand for seed potatoes, but if eating spuds cannot be obtained even seed potatoes will be used.

IRONITE PLANT TIED UP.

As a result of the switchmen's strike and the consequent tying up of freight traffic the local Ironite plant has not been able to ship its product. Hundreds of pounds of its product destined for eastern shipment are being held here as the result of the embargo effect on the places the stock is destined for.

PREPARING FOR CONCRETE ROAD.

County surveyors have been at work through the village and vicinity surveying for the new concrete road which is to be laid here this summer in accordance with the bond issue voted on last November.

William Hasenplug, who has been clerking at the H. C. Vogt store, has resigned his position and has taken up work at Oak Forest.

Mrs. George Zier, Jr., and son, George, of Joliet, were guests at the Henry Wilke home Sunday.

ATTENDS BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Henry Wilke and daughter, Mabel, were in Joliet Monday, attending a birthday party held in honor of the former's mother, Mrs. George Zier. The affair was a complete surprise. Only the members of the family were present.

WORKS IN UNION STATION.

WET GOODS SAID TO HAVE BEEN RESPONSIBLE

New Lenox, April 16.—Although the country is supposed to be dry, there are still some wet spots and oftentimes some people get more than wet feet, as was evidenced early Monday morning when two young fellows with a dandy "shine" on got puzzled on how to operate their auto and had the car standing directly across the interurban tracks east of the village near the Charles Copper place. Mr. Cooper saw an interurban car approaching and flagged the motorman. The lads filled with good cheer were moved off the track and when questioned where they were bound for stated they wanted to go to Chicago. Later on after the effects of their cheerful feeling had subsided they continued on their way.

TO HOLD CEMETERY MEETING.

The annual business meeting and election of officers of the New Lenox Cemetery association will be held this coming Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Urech. The meeting will start at two o'clock.

J. C. Urech, who has been confined to his home with a severe attack of sciatica rheumatism, is somewhat improved.

The New Lenox Dance club will direct dances at the Grange hall Saturday night, April 17, and Saturday night, April 24. This club will continue to give dances at the Grange hall every Saturday night until the Mokena Men's club open their pavilion, which will be the latter part of May.

GIVE PLAY.

Last Friday night the Willow Avenue Presbyterian church of Joliet gave an unique entertainment at the Grange hall under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the local Grace Episcopal church. There was a full house and every one enjoyed the entertainment.

Arthur Studer, who has been working at the Rock Island depot at Joliet, has taken up a new position at the Union station, Joliet. Mr. Studer expects to move to Joliet in the near future.

The Frauen Verein of the Zion Lutheran church met Wednesday in monthly session.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hick was baptized Sunday by Rev. A. Buddenhagen, name given being Norman.

The primary election for electing delegates to the national convention held Tuesday was a quiet affair. Very few votes were cast.

A school election will be held Saturday for electing a school director for the local public school.

GARAGES FEEL OIL SHORTAGE.

As a result of being unable to get oil, due to the freight tieup, the garages are beginning to feel the pinch for oil. There is a big demand for oil which cannot be filled.

C. Goessel's sons managed to get in a supply of implements Tuesday by having them shipped to Matteson on the interurban line. From Matteson the machinery was hauled to Tinley Park by truck.

Joe Greco, who has been conducting a barber shop in the Holstein building, has quit the business and is now working in Chicago. Charles Holstein is planning on opening a candy and ice cream parlor in the former barber shop quarters. At present Mr. Holstein is the only one in Tinley Park selling ice cream.

VILLAGE ELECTION NEXT.

The annual village election will be held next Tuesday at the Village hall. Dick Bruening, who was called to St. James, Minn., by the death of his mother, is expected home next week.

MANY DANCES SCHEDULED.

George Lorenz has rented the Saenger hall for a long list of dances to come within the next eight weeks. The dances are as follows: April 17 by the Tinley Park Y. W. P. club; April 18 by Harvey Athletic club; May 1 by Blue Island bowlers; May 8 by Anchor Pleasure club of Blue Island; May 22 dance by George Lorenz; May 29 by Harvey Athletic club; May 15 by Woman's club of Oak Forest; June 5 by All-American Pleasure club of Blue Island.

Junk dealers from Chicago are paying fancy prices for old iron and papers. Tuesday a junk dealer was in town offering 50 cents per 100 pounds for old papers.

MOKENA TO VOTE ON NEW BOND ISSUE TUES.

Mokena, April 16.—The annual village election to be held next Tuesday is claiming a great deal of attention this week. The election will be of more than ordinary interest, for a special bond issue is to be voted on for the purpose of drilling a new well and erecting a new pumping station. The bond issue ballots read: "Shall bonds of the village of Mokena for the purpose of drilling a new well, installing equipment therefor, and constructing a building to protect the same, in the sum of $3,000 be issued by the board of trustees of said village of Mokena?"

There is a great deal of difference of opinion on the subject, but the fact remains that the village must have new equipment and a new well if the village and the Rock Island are to be supplied with an adequate supply of water.

The pumping station was out of commission again the past week when the pump got out of order. Mr. Mathews, the well driller of Joliet, had to be summoned to repair the trouble.

RACE FOR VILLAGE OFFICES.

The race for the village offices is on. William Semmler is seeking reelection to the office of village clerk, which office he has held since 1911. Karl Krapp, assistant cashier at the Mokena State bank, is also in the race for the same office. Ona E. McGovney, Albert Brann and Edward Schenkel are also seeking reelection for the offices of village trustees. There is no opposition ticket. All of the candidates mentioned are on the village ticket.

The election will be held next Tuesday, April 20, the polls being open at the village hall from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m.

STRIKE MAKING ITS EFFECT FELT.

Mokena is beginning to feel the pinch of the railroad strike. The food situation, while not alarming, is still quite uncomfortable. The local meat dealers are finding it pretty hard to get fresh meat.

The Joliet branches of the packing plants refused to sell any meat supplies to the local dealers the past week on account of the meat scarcity. Potatoes are very scarce and are selling for $5 per bushel and over. Flour, too, is getting low. The past week flour sold at $5 per 50-pound sack. Sugar is getting to be a scarce article also. No supplies have been able to get in on account of the railroad strike. It is said that the large number of cars stored here on the Rock Island side tracks contain much foodstuff. Among the foodstuff held up are five car loads of sugar. In other towns motor trucks have been used for bringing food supplies from Chicago, but this service has not been used here as yet.

CALF STOLEN.

Emil Krapp butchered a couple of calves at the cattle yards the latter part of the week and shortly after Mr. Krapp left the yards someone stole one of the freshly killed calves. No trace has been found of the one so hungry for meat.

MEXICANS COMING IN.

The past week a large number of Mexican section hands have been brought here to work for the Rock Island. The Rock Island imports these laborers every spring. They remain until fall.

PLAY A BIG SUCCESS.

The play, "Aaron Boggs, Freshman," presented at the Mokena school house Friday night by the Mokena public school and some of the young folks of the village, was a decided success. The play was a real live affair and very interesting. Clinton Kraus was the star actor, taking the part of the leading character in the play, Aaron Boggs. He acted his part well and will no doubt some day be a leading man on the stage.

DIRECT FIRST PAVILION DANCE.

A group of young men of the village calling themselves "The Pleasure Seekers" directed the first moonlight dance of the season at the pavilion in the Cappel grove Saturday night. Even though the night was cold, a good sized crowd attended the dance. A Chicago orchestra furnished the music. The Men's club have not set any dates as yet when they will start giving their moonlight picnics.

DR. KERR TO CHANCE OFFICE LOCATION.

On and after May 1 Dr. G. A. Kerr will have his office in the Barnes

OUTSIDE BUYERS GET PRIZE STOCK

Minnesota and Kentucky Men Buy Purebred Holsteins—Sale At Mokena

Minnesota and Kentucky cattle buyers bidding higher than Will county stockmen, bought up sixty-five head of pure bred Holsteins at the two-day sale on the Earnest V. Malby farm at Mokena, which closed last night. A total of $46,385 was paid for some 120 head of stock. Prices ranged from $35, paid by twelve year old Phillip Collins, Morris, for a bull calf, to $5,000 paid by F. William Blake, Belvedere, for a prize bull. The average price was about $425.

J. E. McMahon, buying for the Long Lake Live Stock company, North St. Paul, Minn., paid in $15,835 for forty head of stock. The prices on each head ranged from $15 for a calf to $1,700 for a prize cow; which has established many records for milk and butter production. The original owner, when the deal was closed, contracted with McMahon for the next calf to be born, agreeing to pay $1,000 for a female calf two months old, or $1,500 for a bull calf two months old.

Next heaviest buyer was R. E. Goddard, Harrisburg, Ky., who paid in $14,335 for twenty-five head. He purchased with a view to establishing a dairy herd and selected stock with were also present and purchased stock, as did buyers from other parts of the state and outside the state. McMahon and Goddard, however, outdid all other in purchases.

Among the buyers at the sale were: Wilbur A. Francis, New Lenox; Frank Sprague, Lockport; Arthur F. Maue, Tinley Park; James F. Hazzard, Wilmington Storms and Jensen, New Lenox; Frank Niemeith, Blue Island; J. W. Schilling, B. D. Jones, George BaBrnes, John Godpe, A. Schinke, Arthur C. Guther, Chris Gartleson, C. M. Cleveland, Fred Cappel of Mokena; Phillip Birschmann, Monee; Clyde Collins, Morris; L. S. Dickey, Jr., Chicago; Elmer Frazier, Danville; D. D. Fowler, Woodworth, Ill.; Gus Termunde, Worth, Ill.; A. H. Heckler, St. Paul, Minn. and Frank G. Keller, Naperville, Ill.

building, which is now partly occupied by Fred Leonhardt as a shoe shop. Dr. Kerr has had his office in the Braun building, but since the building has been rented he will have to vacate by the first of next month.

PASSES TESTER'S EXAM.

Arthur Kreis, who has been in the employ of the Commonwealth Edison Electric Co., in Chicago, passed a tester's examination the past week with very creditable results. He is employed in the meter testing department.

SCHOOL ELECTION NEXT.

The annual school election will be held Saturday of this week at the Mokena public school from the hours of 2 to 4 for the purpose of electing a school director for the full term.

ASSESSOR BUSY ON DOG TAX.

Assessor Joseph Kohl, Jr., is busily engaged collecting the town dog tax. All the farmers having dogs must pay this tax.

TO OPEN ICE CREAM PARLOR SOON.

August Pfeleger is expecting to open his ice cream parlor the latter part of next month. As there has been little call for ice cream here the local ice cream dealers have not started handling the frozen delicacy yet.

FORMER TEACHER GETS RAISE IN SALARY.

Prof. S. J. Eakle, former principal of the Mokena public school, now located at Poplar Grove, Ill., has been re-engaged as principal of the public school there with a substantial increase in salary without any solicitation on his part.

SICK NOTES.

Mrs. Elmer L. Cooper, who recently underwent quite a serious operation at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, is improving nicely, according to latest reports.

Miss Minnie Eggers, who has been very ill, is also improving quite favorably.

Arthur Benson, who had his right hand quite badly burned with acid at an auto factory in Pullman, where he is employed, is getting along nicely. The acid made some very deep and painful burns on his fingers.

George Marti, Jr., of Sawyer, Mich., has been visiting with Mokena relatives the past week.

L. Zumbstein has joined the ranks of auto owners the past week.

FRANKFORT GARAGE NEW BRANCH CHICAGO HGTS.

Frankfort, April 16.—The local garage firm of Heusner & Mager has been enjoying such a wave of prosperity the past year that they have been enabled to branch out on a large scale. The past week a new member, Edward Geuther, was taken into the firm and the name of the company changed from Heusner & Mager to the H. M. G. Overland company. A new branch has been opened at Chicago Heights. The Frankfort people purchased the former King Brothers' garage on Vincennes road in Chicago Heights. The new branch was opened the past week. Business has been good from the start at the new stand. The building is to be completely remodeled and everything put in an up-to-date shape. The Chicago Heights branch is to be managed by Robert Engelhardt, a well-known young business man of Chicago Heights. He is also known to many of the Frankfort people.

MANY AUTOTRUCKS USED TO HANDLE FREIGHT.

A large number of large autotrucks pass through Frankfort on the Lincoln highway every day from Chicago to Joliet and other points. These trucks are loaded with freight of all descriptions, mostly foodstuffs, though. The freight strike has stopped all rail shipments so the mototrucks are being pressed into service to get the supplies through.

These trucks run to Chicago Heights and thence through here on the Lincoln highway.

NEW TOWN BOARD MEETS.

The town board of auditors met with William Semmler, the town clerk, Wednesday. The newly elected officers took up their new duties and the retiring officials turned over their records to their successors. The bonds of George J. Hacker, elected supervisor and ex-officio treasurer of highways, were approved by the board. The new board consists of the following:

George J. Hacker, supervisor.
William Semmler, town clerk.
Joseph Kohl, Jr., assessor.
Christ H. Warning, highway commissioner.

TO CONSTRUCT HARD ROADS.

The hard road next to be constructed as voted on is as follows: Begin southeast corner of the northwest quarter of section 6, running westerly one mile through the center of section 6 up to the town line between the townships of Frankfort and New Lenox.

The annual village election will be held next Tuesday. A village clerk, three village trustees and a police magistrate are to be elected. The election will be a quiet affair from present indications.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elsner, who have been residing in Los Angeles, Cal., have returned to Frankfort and will make their home here.

WITH THE SICK.

Mrs. Joseph Scott, who recently underwent an operation at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, returned home Sunday. She is improving nicely.

Loraine, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Weber, underwent an operation at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, Monday, for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. She is convalescing nicely.

Mrs. John Koerner is quite ill and was confined to bed the past week. Albert Bobzin, who has been quite ill the past week, is somewhat improved.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Haake a nine-pound daughter on April 8.

Mrs. Henry Knater underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, on April 7. She is improving nicely.

On April 6 William Weber underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet. He is doing nicely. Dr. W. V. Hedges of Frankfort has had charge of all of these cases.

Raymond Warning visited in Plainfield on business the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klepper were Joliet visitors Monday.

Herman Scheer visited in Joliet on business Monday.

How Fool Reveals Character.

A fool may be known by six things: Anger, without speech; speech, without profit; change, without progress; inquiry, without object; putting trust in a stranger, and mistaking foes for friends.—Arabian Proverb.

"Oh, he's going to take a look at it on his way West," said Hilliard, diffidently, and added, with more generosity than Waring had anticipated. "Rufus and I both asked him to. Let Rufus—and Jack—handle it together. Between them, they'll make rather an exhaustive study, don't you think? And they might turn up something that all of us would want to know."

"That's right! It's a thought. Well—" Cullen looked at his watch. "I can't waste any more time on this to-morrow business. I ought to have been in the office an hour ago. Anybody going downtown?"

"I am—but I'll walk," said Waring sullenly.

"Can I stay?" asked Hilliard of Angela, in an undertone.

"I want you to," she said. Her eyes followed Waring to the doorway.

After they had been alone for a full minute, and neither of them had uttered a syllable, it came to Hilliard that the chief difficulty in being evil is to make an end of it, but that the chief difficulty in being virtuous is to begin. His brain was active and his emotions were placid; but to his mild perplexity he had no compelling desire to make a start. There was no restraining impediment working against him, as on the occasion of his interview with Carol; his impulses were merely lazy. Indeed, he was rather highly gratified at the course of things this morning; he argued that Waring's zeal and Armstrong's itinerary had relieved him from any necessity of an out-and-out avowal of his innocent fraud; it was much more satisfactory, since all the issues were so confused, to turn his affairs over to Cullen, and to await the inevitable verdict on an impersonal basis. In the meantime, he was deeply touched by Cullen's confidence in him; Cullen and Carol Durant alike had refused to believe the obvious truth; he wondered stolidly what it would have meant to him to have had such a reputation from his youth onward; the gratification now would have been superlative—provided only that he had been entitled to his pride.

"He's jealous of you," said Angela sullenly. "That's all—he's jealous. Simply wild with it. You know that—don't you?"

Hilliard started; for it wasn't an emboldening beginning. Not the least so; it implied exactly the sort of rivalry which he had feared, and which he had come to relinquish.

"Who is? Oh! Rufus Waring?"

"Terribly jealous. Perfectly crazy with it. That's what all this whole mess is about." She tossed her head willfully. "I don't care; do you?"

The unreserved bluntness of it nearly took him off his feet; renewing the devastating suspicion that Angela had grown to care too much for him—too much for her own good.

"Why, Angela!" he said lamely. "Of course I do. It hurts me."

She hammered a gold-embroidered sofa-cushion with one tiny fist.

"Oh, he's jealous of everything and everybody. That doesn't count any more. Only it made me perfectly furious. . . . I wanted to scratch him. . . . the very idea of his daring to say anything like that about you! Even if you do like me a lot!" She sighed heavily. "And yet if you stop to think about it, it was sort of brave, too—standing up to all of us when it was three to one, and he was wrong—poor dear!"

Hilliard looked down at her with deep affection and troubled relief.

"As long as I've a defender like you I wouldn't worry," he said, "but I'm afraid it won't be for so very long, Angela, that you'll feel like defending me."

"Why not?" she asked.

"Just a notion of mine. It strikes me that you're fonder of Rufus than you let yourself think. And he needs a champion worse than I do; I'm more used to taking care of myself."

The corners of her mouth were peculiarly sensitive.

"Such a queer notion!" she said. "Where'd you ever get it?"

"Oh, it came of its own accord. . . ."

"It's been such a funny day," she said, musing. "Rufus was funny, and Dad was funny, and you're so funny, and Carol was funny this morning, and I'm funny now, and—"

"Carol!" he echoed involuntarily.

She laughed at him, enjoying his discomfort with the sweet insolence of a naughty juvenile; and it was noteworthy that her arraignment of Waring stopped short at this point.

"I know something about you!" she taunted wickedly.

"What do you know, bright child?" he demanded, red to the temples.

"I know!" Her tone was singing. "So do you! Look at my hair bluish! Why, you guilty thing! Why, you red geranium!"

He sat down beside her, staring at her vivid, flower-like face.

"Angela, you little demon, stop laughing at me!"

It was fresh incentive; she only bubbled the more.

"I told you I'd laugh at you some time," she reminded him triumphantly, "and this is the time!"

"Think so?"

"I know so!" All at once she became demurely sober. "I'm awfully glad, honestly. . . . it isn't out yet, of course, but everybody knows about you and Carol, especially since Jack Armstrong lost out, and went West, just the way they do in novels. I'm just as glad as I can be. Only you might have given me a wee little hint—just to me, you know, mightn't you?"

"Angela!" He caught at her hand.

"Oh! That wakes you up, doesn't it?" Her manner changed to the maternal; if Hilliard had been in a different frame of mind it would have convulsed him. "Now, just be calm and tell me all about it," she instructed him indulgently. "Tell me everything—I won't repeat it to a single soul! I'm awfully excited about it. Please tell me."

"Angela! Where did you—"

She pouted instantly.

"Not just plain 'Angela'—put some trimming on it."

"Well—Angela, dear. . . . what's that about Jack Armstrong? Say that again—and tell me everything you know about it. Be serious for once. That's a good girl!"

Her eyes were mischievously tender; somehow she reminded Hilliard of that moment in the hallway of the Durants' house—the most precious of all his recent memories.

"Will you tell me if I tell you?"

"Yes, I guess so."

Her finger was upraised in warning.

"Say 'Yes, dear.'"

"Yes, dear," said Hilliard, writhing. She settled herself with a little founce of excitement.

"Well. . . . Jack asked her, and she refused him. . . . Flat as a pancake. That's gospel truth! She told me she'd refused him, and he told me the pancake part. And everybody's glad of it—he's a nice boy; awfully nice—but nowhere near as nice as you are. And he's just naturally gone away to get over it. And you're the only one left. So—that's finished."

He stared at her unblinkingly. Had he really been at such cross-purposes with Armstrong at the station, then? The conception was humbling.

"Everybody?" he repeated, red and white by turns, and mightily hushed.

"What does that mean?"

"Just that. Everybody. That is—"

Her accent was deliciously superior. "That is, all the people one knows."

"They think. . . . they think I'm the. . . . the one?"

"Silly!" She patted his head. "I didn't believe you'd try to camouflage me. No—honestly— isn't it true?"

He studied her a moment. "What would you say if it were?" he asked soberly.

She returned his gaze with engaging frankness.

"Oh, I want it to be—I want it to be!" she said. "Carol's the sweetest thing in town, and as for you. . . . well, sometimes I almost wish I could marry you myself!"

His heart leaped dangerously. One complication the less! Oh, the respite of it! Angela removed from the problem.

That Wakes You Up, Doesn't It?"

lem and—he sank back wearily—Carol coming into it again, and irrevocably.

"Almost?" he queried mechanically.

She looked at the floor; when she raised her eyes he saw the well remembered depths in them. She was half-child, half-woman—and the woman was speaking with the child's tongue. Her hand covered his; the warm, timid pressure was very assuaging.

"Yes, 'almost'. . . . I suppose I can really talk to you, can't I? I always thought I could. . . . well, when you first came here I was perfectly crazy about you. . . . I am yet, in a way, only sort of boiled down. . . . you know. Not like a sister at all, but. . . . not the other sort, either. I thought it was going to be—once—but. . . . I like you better than anybody else in the world—all but two. . . . I liked to be kissed by people I like. . . . and. . . . you know it's sort of like sunlight; I need lots of it. People have always fussed over me. . . . Here she gave a poignant sigh for her lost youth. "Only. . . . it's funny, too. . . . but one of the two people I do like better than I do you. . . . is in a different way. . . . is Rufe Waring. He's jealous as a. . . . a tom cat. . . . but somehow I don't mind it from him; I always like it. . . . He was so frightfully jealous about you, and I. . . . I teased him about that. It was just because he thought you weren't quite good enough for me, I guess. And you've got to give him credit for that, now, haven't you? . . . And. . . . I hope you and Carol 'll be awfully happy together."

"Dear girl!" said Hilliard gently.

"Do you understand?" Her eyes were very pleading, very misty.

"Understand?—yes. Can I wish you happiness, too?"

"Not yet," she said, adorably prim.

"He hasn't. . . . oh, we both know about it, but he's got to graduate from law school first, and—after that. . . . maybe I can. . . . travel a little."

She blushed shamefully. "You needn't grin like a Cheshire cat—I guess I'll see Niagara Falls, anyway!"

"I wasn't grinning," he said. "I was smiling at you right out of my heart. . . . But I do wish happiness to you—always and always. And I'm happier myself than I've been for ages. . . . dear. . . ."

He stopped, swamped by the recollection that it was Waring who was to share in the demonstration of his perfidy. To wish happiness to an executioner—and not be a hypocrite? Incredible—yet true. Hilliard wished him happiness.

"What is it?" she demanded, alert to his altered expression.

"Nothing. . . . I'm just sorry I'm not a Mormon!"

"You're fibbing! Still. . . ."

Hilliard rose hastily.

"Wait!" she said. "You can't go until you've told me one more thing. . . . you don't honestly think Rufe's understanding, do you?"

"No—oh, no, Angela. A man can be so upset that he can—"

"You know we were just shocked and surprised—and Dad's awfully quick tempered. And it was so sudden! We didn't stop to talk it over, we sailed right into him, and all of us got excited, and then you came in. We didn't know how frightfully jealous Rufe could be—he's been bad enough before, but this time was the limit—and it's only because he's a boy. It's. . . . sort of primeval. You know."

"Yes, dear—yes!"

"And. . . . he did know us long before he ever knew you. He thought he was protecting us. It was just an obsession—"

"It's all right—quite all right. Please!" He touched her hair lightly.

"I wish I were as sure you'd always defend me as I am that you'd stick to him, Angela."

"That's twice you've said that. . . . and you know what I think! I've told you. And. . . . are you going off without telling me anything at all?" Her voice betrayed the irreparable injury in it.

Hilliard moistened his lips.

"Angela, dear, next to one other person I love you better than any one else on earth."

"That's nice," she said, with a sigh of perfect content.

He bent to her, but she eluded him.

"Oh, no!" she gasped in fluttering protest. "Even if you. . . . but I've told you about Rufe now—you haven't told me about Carol, but it's plain as day—it wouldn't be right!"

"Angela!"

She relented swiftly; his voice was something to rely on.

"Well—just my cheek, then. Honestly, I. . . ."

"No, dear," said Hilliard. He compelled her chin upward, and smiled down into her lovely, startled eyes, and stooped and kissed her forehead. . . . then her lips.

"That's for good-by," he said, "to the dearest little girl I ever knew. . . . We're both growing up, aren't we?"

CHAPTER XIII.

In the colorless days that followed, Hilliard listlessly set about the ordering of his final plans. Fortunately, there were few of them; his mind would never have been equal to intricate detail.

It was a slight consolation to him to realize that the city had a habit of judging men by personal rather than by financial standards; for all its pride and wealth, it would censure him more for his wrecked personality than for whatever money losses he had caused. He was prepared to endure that censure; and because he understood the provocation behind it, he was all the more eager to aid in the salvage. There would be more saved from the underwriting project, he thought, than from his character.

He had deposited with Cullen all he owned, except for his private belongings, his runabout, and a trivial sum for current expenses. The runabout he would offer for sale; it meant a few hundred dollars more to be divided among his contributors. Beyond that, there was nothing else he could restore to them.

He didn't believe that Harmon would ever carry out his promised betrayal; not that he had faith in Harmon's code of ethics, but because he trusted Harmon's horse sense. If Hilliard were alone to be accused, Harmon would gain nothing and might, if he offered any adverse testimony, even implicate himself. Indeed, if Harmon should say enough to establish the proof in the dangerous status of an accessory before the fact. No. . . . this was the same procedure; to let Presently he sensed a subtle supercharging of the atmosphere whenever he met a male acquaintance; he couldn't deny that the greeting of his bankers was suddenly less informal, more impersonal; he perceived, with a sinking spasm of foreboding, that fewer people stopped to chat with him on the street and that those who still were willing to halt and pass the time of day were uncommonly reticent about it. Syracuse hadn't yet arrayed itself officially against him, and a part of Syracuse was outwardly as pleasant as ever, but there wasn't the slightest question that the story had leaked out, and that it had got itself adherents. The end was plainly in sight; Armstrong's report was due. Only the Cullens and the Durants and one or two other of the James street families were quite as cordially attentive as formerly; and to Hilliard's vast chagrin, they rather overdid it. . . . he seemed to feel in the steady warmth of their friendship a sort of blindly unseasonable resolution to support him, whether or no. This, infinitely more than the cooling manner of the majority, galled him incessantly. It was as though they rallied to his defense before the need of it. . . . it was as though they conceded in advance the necessity of such a defense.

So Hilliard waited, waited. . . . smiling upon the world his hollow smile, carrying through the city the body of a knave and the face of a martyr and the soul of a gentleman. . . . and in the watches of the night, he was perplexed to find that his eyes were sometimes wet, but never when he was thinking of himself—always when he was thinking of Angela, or Carol, or—unexplainably—of a common-enough representative of the French bourgeoisie named Pierre Dutout.

On the eighth day, he chanced to meet Dr. Durant by accident in front of the Physicians' building at high noon. "Hello, there! You're just in time," said the Doctor, cheerfully. "I'm going over to the University club for lunch. Won't you join me? I want your advice. I'm the worst business man in the world—you probably know that by this time. And I trust my hands for friendship; but when I want advice, I go to an expert. So you qualify on both counts. Come along over."

Hilliard was flattered, but not deceived.

"I'm not sure that my advice is worth anything half as expensive as a luncheon, Doctor."

The older man took him by the arm, and impelled him across the street.

"That depends on your appetite," he laughed. "Come along, and help me out on a decision I've got to make. About an investment."

Hilliard hung back for a moment, while suspicion dawned on him.

"What sort of investment, Doctor?" he queried.

"You come and sit down," urged the Doctor, seductively. "And we'll talk it over later. But first of all—" He patted his waistcoat. "Let's eat."

Hilliard was almost too grateful to speak; the Doctor's strategem was patent, but in all chivalry the invitation couldn't be declined. Once inside the doors of the club, however, he became panicky; for his first sweeping reconnaissance included half a dozen men whose late behavior had indicated that they knew.

The Doctor drew Hilliard under the mantle of his own unassailable position, and plowed ahead with the utmost serenity. He nodded here and there, he spoke to members right and left; he bowed across the room; always his personality, rather than his person, seemed to be escorting and guarding Hilliard; and Syracuse couldn't decline to acknowledge a man who was under the Doctor's adequate protection. Those who spoke to the Doctor also spoke to Hilliard; there was no way out of it, and they spoke as casually as they could. They also nodded to him, and bowed, but when his back was turned, they became low-voiced and communicative, and he knew it.

Divers in Ancient History.

The earliest mention of diving is made by Homer, about 850 B. C., in the "Iliad," when Patroclus compares the fall of Hector's charioteer to a diver diving for oysters; and Thucydides tells of divers being used to remove submarine barriers placed with the object of impeding or injuring the Grecian fleet at the siege of Syracuse. These divers had no apparatus save a stone to carry them quickly to the bottom and to cling to for the brief period, about two minutes, they could stay below. This is called natural diving and is still in use for collecting sponges and pearls at Ceylon and in the Mediterranean.

the memory of Dicky Morgan rest in peace, and to let the brunt of anger fall on Hilliard and Carol, and they are body from nowhere, with a lying face, a lying tongue, and no claque to mourn at his exit.

But then there was Angela's startling allegation. . . . She had declared that "everybody" in town knew all about Hilliard and Carol. "Everybody" would have a different opinion. He had tried to explain himself to Carol, and he had failed; and in the light of Angela's revelation, it was difficult to decide whether Carol herself, in protesting that she wanted to retain him as a friend, had meant that and nothing more, or that and a great deal more. But no matter what she had intended to convey, he dared not go to her again, he dared not see her and speak to her, for if he lied to her. . . . but he couldn't lie to her now, and every word of truth would prove a boomerang. He was trapped; and although his heart was breaking for the love he had almost won a second time, he remained steadfast to the ideals he had created. If Carol were to lose him as a suitor, she should never know that her first and foremost suitor had gone to the devil.

He told himself fiercely there was one definite and permanent way out of it. . . . Nobody would then have cause to gossip about Dicky Morgan; no one—after the first natural flood of excitement and denunciation—would remember very much about Henry Hilliard. It would save such a deal of needless trouble; it would save such a wearisome amount of shame.

But against the pitiless background of the war, self-destruction as a means of avoiding personal difficulties, self-caused, seemed curiously repellent—curiously cheap.

No. . . . it was a part of his own grievance that Carol and the others must grieve, too; he had a dual responsibility to society. He had no right to leave these matters clouded by any uncertainty of motive. Syracuse had a right to know the facts; and if the facts brought pain to those he loved, why, that was something he should have thought about in June, and not in November.

As he clung comfortless to the last slipping hours of the reputation he had so carefully builded, he knew that it wasn't the punishment of the law that he dreaded, it was the ostracism which would accompany it. It wasn't his own shame which gripped him, it was the consciousness of the shame which would attach to his friends. And so, for a day or two, all his faculties were strung upon the attitude of the public toward him; he was watching frantically for the first signs of adverse demeanor, and bracing himself for the shock which was unavoidably to come. For secrets will out, and although he had no reason to expect Waring to break his pledge, he knew that when rumor smolders among as many as four people, there comes—there always comes—a moment in which it bursts forth in spontaneous combustion.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney, flushing any time.—Adv.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

HOPE FOR PERMANENT PEACE

Those Who Fought, and Those Who Suffered at Home, Alike Favor Some Form of a League of Nations.

Article X.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Europe was succumbing to exhaustion when the war came to an end. The terrible waste was telling. Endurance had reached the breaking point. With peace one thought ran around the world: There must be no more war. The men who did the fighting said it loudest.

"I'm glad I had a chance to do my part—I wouldn't have missed the 'show' for a million dollars, and I wouldn't take a million dollars to go through it again," is the way they put it. Everywhere in Europe I heard, "It is over, it is finished, thank God."

The first thought of reconstruction was a plan to make peace permanent.

The laboratory and the machine shop gave to this war a terrible meaning, new agencies had been introduced to kill and maim men, liquid fire, mustard gas, high explosives, bombs from the clouds, torpedoes from the sea depths. The world was horrified. The length of the war, the number of dead and crippled, the raiding and bombing of defenseless cities taught the world that an end must be put to war if civilization was to live.

So the people, particularly the working people, took heart when a League of Nations was suggested as a means of enforcing peace. They placed their hopes in it. They had suffered most from the war. The dead were largely of their dead. The returning cripples were blood of their blood. As they put it, they were from their class. Of course the sons of the other class fought, shared the hardships, paid the price, but they were few. The group from which they came is small, while the toll of casualties from labor's ranks was large.

All men know that controversies between nations are inevitable. In the absence of some scheme of arbitration there is but one way that these controversies can be settled—by force—war.

It is not uncommon for individuals to have serious differences of opinion. Every lawsuit, and there are thousands of them in every city of every country, represents a difference of opinion. If we did not have courts providing a peaceful determination of these disputes, the litigants would be compelled to settle their differences by force. Assault and battery would succeed orderly procedure. Nations have been without a peaceful means of adjusting their difficulties, and as a consequence they have been compelled to resort to force. Until some scheme of arbitration is created, to talk peace is to waste words, to hope for it is idle dreaming.

Peace Conference Fell Short.

The peace conference met in Paris. Labor watched it. At an early stage in its proceedings intrigue was discovered at work. Wrangling, bickering, bargaining and trading for commercial advantage occupied the time and thought that the world expected would be devoted to the building up of a league that would at least decrease the chances of future wars. Statesmen in their blind devotion to expediency lost sight of the great reason for the conference. They talked of boundary lines, discussed frontiers, and always from the point of view of financial and military advantage to their respective countries. It was noticed that the territories over which they quarreled were rich in minerals or some other thing of great commercial advantage. They squabbled over spoils. Then, too, these men who were supposed to be concerned in the future peace of the world, in arguing over frontiers urged their respective claims on the grounds that their respective countries needed these frontiers to make them secure in future wars. What future wars and why the discussion of future wars at a conference, the object of which was future peace?

Working men watched, listened and thought. They construed these bickerings and wranglings as evidence of the fact that there is an interest in the world which does not believe in giving up force. I am only reporting the truth when I add they suspect this interest is Capital.

If the League of Nations falls this suspicion will be confirmed. The movement toward an internationalism of the workers will be given great impetus. The League of Nations failing, they argue there is only one other means of preventing war. It is for the men who make up the rank and file of the armies in time of war, the millions recruited from shops, factories and fields, to get together and organize an international labor authority to save the working men from war. Such a movement would take away from governments an important and necessary function and give to one class in the world a power so great that political governments would be puppets in their hands, and yet in the light of the happenings of the last five years labor could not be blamed. The world is entitled to protection against such slaughter as we have just gone through, and if the political governments fail to take the necessary steps the plain people will.

World Now Closely Knit.

Internationalism is coming—in fact it is already here. Inventions have brought the people of the world close together. The wireless and the cable give us the happenings of remote parts of the world in a few hours. Distance has been destroyed. We are becoming neighbors in knowledge of each other, whether we live on the same continent or not. Modern transportation is shortening the time between places. An air service is in prospect which promises to make London as near New York tomorrow as Chicago is today.

We already have a successful internationalism in finance and credits. Big business long ago obliterated national lines. The commerce of the world is already organized internationally.

The important question at this time is what form will the new internationalism take? Will it be an internationalism of organized dollars? If so, the world is in serious danger of a financial autocracy. Will it be an internationalism of organized labor? If this happens it means the dictatorship of the proletariat. Both are equally undesirable. No part of the people should be permitted to enforce their will upon the rest. One kind of slavery is as bad as another. The great majority of the human race wants freedom, not advantage. It is not ambitious to dictate—it will not be dictated to.

A League of Nations is the solution. It is a union of the nations of the world, and as the nations of the world represent all the people of the various states such a combination is democratic. That it is necessary is plain. Rivalry for markets, competition for trade, are bound to lead to war unless we have an agreement that these and other problems will be submitted to arbitration. It is not necessary to submit questions involving national honor. Few of such questions ever directly provoke war. It is when nations fighting each other for markets reach a point of positive disagreement that they begin calling each other names. These insults wound honor, war results.

Peace Table Proves Worth.

A League of Nations is a continuance of the peace table, and notwithstanding the wranglings of the present peace table there would have been war in Europe before this if it were not sitting in Paris. Two cases serve to illustrate. The coal fields of upper Galicia, to be determined by a plebiscite between Poland and Czechoslovakia, would have been a cause of war if the peace table was not in existence. Poland had troops on the border. Germany had her soldiers at the frontier. One thing, and one thing alone, prevented war—it was the fear of the peace table. The same facts described the controversy between Poland and Czechoslovakia; war has been avoided by the peace table submitting the Teschen question to a vote of the people of the territory.

No League of Nations will have much effect upon the future peace of Europe which does not include the United States. The nations of Europe do not trust each other. Every one respects the fact that the United States does not seek territory in Europe. This gives our country the commanding place as the one disinterested power in the world. With this moral force we can do much to maintain the peace of the world.

The propaganda of revolution coming out of bolshevik Russia, urging the workers to organize an international dictatorship of the proletariat and seize the world, is not nearly as dangerous to the peace of the world as the political heckling against the League of Nations.

TAXES IN GERMANY HEAVY

Individuals Are Beginning to Feel That Country Really Suffered Defeat in the War.

The individual German has not begun to feel the peace terms, financially.

During the war the Germans have been loaning their money to the government. This year they have begun to give it.

There is an estate tax graduated as to size and as to relationship. It imposes the heaviest tax on the largest inheritance from the most distant relative.

A peculiar feature of this law, illustrating its severity, is a provision that in no case may the tax exceed the amount of the inheritance taxed. No mean cousin can leave "spite money" which would compel the recipient to pay more than he got, anyhow.

An income tax ranges to about 70 per cent as the income grows.

There is a profits tax and a heavy tax on wealth increases during the war—to get the profiteers—the usual taxes for revenue, heavier than ever, and a capital levy is being considered.

With food, coal and clothing short, they are bound to add to the discontent. Agitators will make the most of the crisis.

But Germany has weathered two crises as serious: In the most difficult months just after the surrender a year ago; and the peace conference period, when she woke up, as loser, to the terms.

DYES FROM VARIOUS SOURCES

Indian Squaw Lays Many Plants and Trees Under Contribution for Her Bright Colorings.

In making Indian dyes the stems of the maidenhair fern and the dark of the willow produce a dark brown; a shining black from the claws of the unicorn plant; a brilliant red from the yucca roots and numerous mineral and vegetable substances yield for her a variety of colors.

The season for gathering the fibers for baskets is when the stalk has finished growing and before it hardens. These the squaw splits and rolls them in cloths or bark and lays them away for future use.

When about to be used the split withes are soaked in tepid water and woven when still saturated with water. Some tree roots, as spruce and cedar, require many weeks of soaking before they are free of all soft matter and ready to be woven.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming the influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Statistics show that more than 40 per cent of the clergy live to be septuagenarians.

Another Royal Suggestion

BISCUITS, BUNS and ROLLS

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

BISCUIT! What delight this word suggests. So tender they fairly melt in the mouth, and of such glorious flavor that the appetite is never satisfied. These are the kind of biscuits anyone can make with Royal Baking Powder and these unusual recipes.

Biscuits

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup milk or half milk and half water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, add shortening and rub in very lightly; add liquid slowly; roll or pat on floured board to about one inch in thickness (handle as little as possible); cut with biscuit cutter. Bake in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Royal Cinnamon Buns

2 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
4 tablespoons seeded raisins

Sift 2 1/2 tablespoons of measured sugar with flour, salt and baking powder; rub shortening in lightly; add beaten egg to water and add slowly. Roll out 1/2 inch thick on floured board; brush with melted butter, sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon and raisins. Roll as for jelly roll; cut into 1 1/2 inch pieces; place with cut edges up on well-greased pan; sprinkle with a little sugar and cinnamon. Bake in moderate oven 30 to 35 minutes; remove from pan at once.

Parker House Rolls

4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
6 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 tablespoons shortening
1 1/2 cups milk

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add melted shortening to milk and add slowly to dry ingredients stirring until smooth. Knead lightly on floured board and roll out 1/2 inch thick. Cut with biscuit cutter. Crease each circle with back of knife one side of center. Butter the small section and fold larger part well over the small. Place one inch apart in greased pan. Allow to stand 15 minutes in warm place. Brush each with melted butter and bake in moderate oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Straight talk on Cream Separators by
B. A. Zechlin
 Frankfort, Ill.

NO MATTER what anyone may claim, there is only one speed at which a cream separator should be turned in order to get all the cream and cream of uniform thickness.

That's the speed plainly indicated on the crank of every separator, of whatever make.

Full speed is the only assurance of full capacity and full efficiency.

Every De Laval now has a Bell Speed-Indicator. The bell warns the operator if the separator is turned too slowly. There can be no mistake about it.

The Bell Speed-Indicator adds nothing to the price but much to the value of the De Laval Cream Separator.

Come in, examine the machine and see how the Bell Speed-Indicator works.

52¢

How would YOU like a raise like this?

—and for 34 Years Work

THAT is the kind of increase in salary the minister has received. His living expenses have risen just as fast and as far as yours.

But he is paid on the average just 52 cents more per church member than he was paid 34 years ago.

The Minister Never Fails You

Every officer of the Government with a war message to deliver appealed to the ministers first of all.

But 80% of the ministers receive less income than government economists figure as a minimum for the support of an average family.

When hospitals need money they enlist the support of the ministers—and receive it.

But when sickness visits the minister or the members of his family they must be treated in a charity ward. His pay is less than a day laborer's.

8 out of every 10 ministers receive less than $20 a week—about half the pay of a mechanic.

We Pay Him Half the Wages of a Mechanic

And of these pitifully inadequate salaries, how much do you contribute? Nothing if you are outside the church; an average of less than 3c a day if you are a church member.

All of us share in the benefits of Christian ministers to the community. They marry us; bury us; baptize our children; visit us when we are sick. In their hands is the spiritual training of the youth.

We Are All Profiteers at Their Expense

Part of the Interchurch World program is this—a living wage for every minister of Jesus Christ, an adequate plan, and a chance to do a big man's job.

If you want better preachers, help to pay the preachers better. It's the best investment for your community—and for your children—that you can ever make.

Bell System

The equipment of all public service enterprises in Europe, whether publicly or privately operated, disintegrated terribly during the Great War.

There were not funds sufficient to keep them up to standard.

As a result the service of public utilities was greatly impaired and much time and money will be required for their restoration.

In the meantime the public is inconvenienced.

America has been more fortunate. Her wire using companies have been excellently well maintained. This has been due to untiring effort and vigilance upon the part of operating officials and the public's willingness to pay liberal rates. The Telephone Company must continue to charge rates sufficient to maintain good service, since every element entering into that service costs more than it did six months ago, and costs are still advancing.

The successful telephone company must have the cordial co-operation of its patrons, particularly with respect to the payment of fair rates.

Cement-Coated Nails.

Approximately one-tenth of the wire nails manufactured are now cement coated, according to H. A. Knight, who writes on the subject in the Iron Age (New York). The nails are coated by shaking them up in a hot tumbling barrel with a compound consisting mainly of resin, from which they issue with a thin, tough coating which greatly increases their holding power. The friction of the driven nail with the wood melts the cement and forms a glue, which makes fast the nail.—Literary Digest.

Thought.

Men fear thought as they fear nothing else on earth—more than ruin, more even than death. Thought is subversive and revolutionary, destructive and terrible; thought is merciless to privilege, established institutions and comfortable habits; thought is anarchic and lawless, indifferent to authority, careless of the well-tried wisdom of the ages. Thought looks into the pit of hell and is not afraid.—Bertrand Russell.

Honor Welsh Patron Saint.

In Queensland March 1 is kept as a holiday sacred to St. David, the patron saint of Wales, who resided in Menevia, which early became a popular place of pilgrimage. William the Conqueror, Henry II and Edward I went to this place. Two pilgrimages to Menevia were commonly regarded as the equivalent of one pilgrimage to Rome.

Wedding Ring Worn on Thumb.

In the reign of George I of England fashion had something to do with the wedding ring. Large wedding rings being favored at that time, it was not unusual to see a woman wearing her wedding ring on her thumb, although it had been placed on the fourth finger during the ceremony. Wedding rings were also worn on the thumb in the middle of the seventeenth century.

The Modern Shekel.

What has become of the old-fashioned minister who used to preach against laying up money to rust and corrode while in this mundane sphere? The few shekels we get bear no rust and they do not corrode, neither doth moths prey upon them, but we sometimes feel like it goes the other way, although they have not broken in upon us.—Hartford Republican.

Paper Backing for Pictures.

To paste new paper backings on framed pictures, the paper, cut to the proper size, should first be floated in a pan of water until it is entirely wet. The paste should be applied to the frame, and the paper, from which the actual drops of water have been wiped, should be pressed into place upon the frame. As the paper dries it will shrink, making it a smoothly stretched backing.

Well to Forget Sorrows.

Some people hoard up their sorrows as a miser hoards gold, and whenever they have a little leisure, they take them out and count them over as the miser counts up his treasure. The fuller your coffers are of remembered sorrows the poorer you are. Throw them away. Refuse to recall them when you can help it.—Exchange.

Banish Worry and Anxiety.

Many of those who have failed in life could have accomplished great things if they could only have kept themselves in harmony, if they could only have cut out of their lives the friction. The worry and the anxiety frittered away their energy and wasted their life forces.—Orison Swett Marden, in Chicago Daily News.

Excellent Logic.

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For fire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—cost plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, fabrics and standards vary vastly in cost. Reinforcements, plies and thickness are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It rests with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets nor patents to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it is a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built model tires, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

CONTRACTING PARTIES

THE contracting parties is a title given to young people who take each other for better or worse and are obliged by the law to sign an agreement that they will stand hitched.

The marriage contract is not written out in full like a farm lease or a life insurance policy, hence the contracting parties do not become fully acquainted with its provisions and the fine print until it has been in operation for some time. It is very easy for a husband to live up to the marriage contract so long as his wife is willing to provide for both and allow him to rest up. One reason why so many marriage contracts are shot full of holes within nine months after the officiating clergyman has been paid off is because some wives object to maintaining a rest resort for a calloused, slab-sided

Bents

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR Bents are your Advisers. Bents are just Tendancies. Everyone has them. They are born with you. Wise people are those who listen to their Advisers—who consider their Bents. Each one of your Bents should be carefully considered in silent Conference. And that Conference should be Personal and Serious. For—

Every Man, sooner or later, may BECOME what his Bents ARE.

Neglect not a single Bent that is within you, but as Master over it, cultivate and educate it to do your bidding. Become what you are FITTED to become. Exert every faculty and use every ounce of energy to this end. It is good sense to believe that you know your own Bents better than anyone else. And you have the assurance ever with you that—

Every man, sooner or later, may BECOME what his Bents ARE.

Franklin followed his own Bents and became a World figure. Instead of following the Bents that his Father seemed to see in him in desiring him to become a Clergyman. You will need no advisors if you will stop long enough to search out and look your Bents squarely in the face. And if you follow your Bents Courageously and without discouragement, you will then be able to feel to the full, the truth of how blessedly Happy is the man who has FOUND his work.

What to Do With Leftovers.

One of the ways of disposing of leftovers is not to have any; but even in the best-managed households there is bound to be some foods left over. We do not wish to be niggardly, nor yet so profuse in our providing that there is any great amount of food left over.

A small dish of corn which has been served as a vegetable may appear again in the form of a few fritters as a garnish for a dish of chicken which was just enough to go around. The corn is saved and the chicken is thus sufficient.

Fish Balls Baked.

Take one cupful of cooked rice and one cupful of flaked cooked fish, one egg well beaten, a tablespoonful of strong cheese, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and salt and pepper to taste. Form into balls, place in a buttered pan and bake a delicate brown. Serve with slices of buttered toast.

Salmon Salad.

Any bits of left over salmon, if mixed with coconut, adding a few string beans or chopped pickle and any good dressing, make an appetizing salad. Use lettuce as a border or garnish to the platter of salad.

Sour Cream Filling.

For a layer cake, take thick sour cream—not too sour—whip and add chopped raisins and a few coarsely husband who knows what woman's sphere is and wants her to stay where she is put.

If more young people realized that married life under present conditions is something which should be tackled only after meditation and prayer, there would be fewer contracting parties ambling up to the ferns and smilax in pongee silk and the conventional black. The young man who takes a contract to support and provide with real food a husky and voracious bride, on $25 per week, should step out and take a look at the price of process flour and beef liver before launching his bark on the matrimonial sea. There has been more seasickness among contracting parties who forgot to figure the grocery bill as a liability of the business, during the last few months, than ever before in the history of the world.

On the other hand, no young man and woman should refuse to become contracting parties if they have health, horse sense and are not afraid that they will be worn by work. There is nothing nicer than married life, when both parties live up to the contract without trying to slip in a joker now and then. (Copyright.)

REWARD.

Don't want medals on my breast, Don't want all the glory, I'm not worrying greatly lest The world won't hear my story. A chance to dream beside a stream Where fish are biting free; A day or two, 'neath skies of blue Is joy enough for me.

I do not ask a hoard of gold, Nor treasures rich and rare; I don't want all the joys to hold, I only want a share. Just now and then, away from men And all their haunts of pride. If I can steal, with rod and reel, I will be satisfied.

I'll gladly work my way through life. I would not always play; I only ask to quit the strife For an occasional day. If I can sneak from toil a week To chum with stream and tree I'll fish away and smiling say That life's been good to me.

Last Night's Dreams

—What They Mean

DID YOU DREAM OF SATAN?

THE mystics are not entirely agreed as to the significance of a dream of the devil. Some declare that simply to see the devil in a dream signifies that you will be very fortunate in life; others that it is a warning of temptation. Still others declare it to signify that evil influences are at work against you and that you have false friends. These two latter opinions may be accepted without discrediting the first one; for a man may be very successful in life in spite of temptations and secret enemies.

Those mystics who put the very worst construction upon a dream of the devil admit that if you dream that you are fighting him successfully good fortune awaits you. If you dream that he overcomes you, look out for dangers ahead. To dream of satan also is a sign that you will shortly go away from home for an extended period. To the maiden it means that her departure from home will be because of a happy marriage in all probability. But if it is not a happy marriage which takes her from home it will be some other pleasant or profitable occasion. But in any event remember in your dream the Scriptural saying: "Resist the devil and he will flee from you."

A dream of the devil often cited by the scientists is that of the famous Eighteenth century composer, Tartini. When he was only twenty-one years old Tartini dreamed that the devil suddenly stood before him. The idea occurred to him to hand satan his fiddle and see what he would do with it. To his surprise the devil took the fiddle and began to play a piece of inexpressible loveliness. Tartini was elated, transported, uplifted and awake with the music still ringing in his ears. Seizing his violin he attempted to reproduce what he had heard. The result was "The Devil's Sonata" which has delighted so many generations. "It was the best thing I ever wrote," said Tartini in after years, "but, oh! how feeble, inadequate and inferior compared to the sonata I heard the devil play." (Copyright.)

GREEN FEED FOR HEN FLOCK

Providing It Is Relished by Fowls There Probably Is Little Difference in Kind Fed.

Every poultry keeper has a favorite green feed for his flock. Usually it is one that can be supplied with least expense and effort. Providing it is relished by the fowls, there probably is little difference in what kind of green feed is supplied. United States department of agriculture specialists say. Cabbages, turnips and beets are all suitable for this purpose. The larger roots and the cabbages may be suspended by a wire or they may be placed on the floor, in which case it is well to split the turnips or beets lengthwise with a large knife. Potatoes may also be fed and should be cooked. The mangel is excellent for feeding raw.

Clover, cut up and soaked in boiling water, is good when fed with mash, as is clover meal and ground alfalfa. Sprouted oats or other sprouted grains may also be fed and make excellent green feeds, but require considerable labor. As a general thing the flock should have, once a day, about all the green feed it will eat.

RANGE FOR GROWING CHICKS

Quantities of Green Feed, Bugs, Worms and Other Things Obtained in Place of Grain.

Nothing is better for growing chicks than a liberal supply of sour milk. If it can be obtained, it always should be kept before them in an open dish or pan where they can eat and drink it freely. Where sour milk is fed, the amount of beef scrap in the dry mash may be reduced one-half.

Plenty of fresh, clean water is absolutely necessary for all growing chicks. In hot weather, it should be given twice daily and put into fountains or dishes and placed in the shade so as to keep as cool as possible. Clean the water dish thoroughly each day before filling.

An abundance of free range with plenty of shade is necessary if chicks are to grow rapidly and develop into vigorous fowls, says the United States department of agriculture. Growing chicks that have free range obtain quantities of green feed, bugs, worms and other things, therefore requiring less grain, and they are also less liable to sickness or disease. Give your chicks free range whenever possible.

VERMIN ON MATURE POULTRY

Careful Poultryman Will Soon Acquire Habit of Looking for Injurious Insects.

On mature fowls, the lice, or their eggs, can be found between or on the feathers of the fluff, the soft feathers about the thighs and rear part of the body, on the underside of the long wing feathers, on top of the head or among the feathers on the side of the thighs. The careful poultryman gets the habit of looking continually for lice.

ENEMIES OF LITTLE CHICKS

Prevention Is Best Procedure Against Hawks, Crows, Weasels, Cats and Other Pests.

Hawks, crows, rats, foxes, skunks, weasels, cats, and dogs are the most dreaded enemies of the growing chicken and every spring thousands of chicks are destroyed by them. Poultrymen who have given thought and attention to the question of reducing the loss due to these pests say the best method of procedure is generally prevention.

NO BEST BREED OR VARIETY

Best Plan Is to Select Stock Preferred and Breed Up to High Standard of Quality.

There is no best breed or best variety of fowls. One person will succeed best with a certain breed and his neighbor will prefer a different breed. The best plan is to select the breed or variety that is preferred and, by proper mating, breed it up to a high standard of quality and production.

STOMACH TROUBLE AND CONSTIPATION ENDED

Suffered So He Couldn't Work for a Year, but Mr. McCormick Was Cured Promptly.

"I had stomach trouble and constipation for five years. One year of this time I was unable to work, suffering untold agony. I doctored with some of the best physicians, also took many proprietary medicines, but could not find permanent relief. Finally a friend recommended Milks Emulsion. The first few doses relieved me greatly, and three bottles of it effected a permanent cure."—C. A. McCormick, Anderson, Ind.

Mr. McCormick is only one of many hundreds who have endured torture for years and then found that Milks Emulsion gives blessed relief and real, lasting benefit. It costs nothing to try.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy and natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles; home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 50c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Knew His Manners.

A man from one of the back country ranches visited Los Angeles for the first time and went into a restaurant to have dinner.

All went well until the waiter brought him a serviette. The eyes of the rancher flamed and, pulling a six-shooter from his hip pocket told the waiter his mind.

"Take that blamed thing away at once," he said evenly. "I reckon I know when to use a handkerchief without having them darned hints thrown out!"

WORK AND PLAY

Nature pumps vitality into a healthy man, and this vitality expresses itself both in work and play. If you want to work with vigor and to delight in sports, you must be in good health. Good stomach is the basis of a flourishing physical condition, and every stomach disturbance should be remedied as quickly as possible. Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine has been known for thirty years as the most dependable remedy for all stomach troubles, poor appetite, constipation, headache, nervousness, etc.

"Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine is a wonderful remedy; I could not do without it. It proved itself of the best service even for the influenza," wrote Mr. Simon Sladek, Newton, Iowa, on March 17, 1920. Ask your druggist or dealer in medicines also for other Triner's remedies, if you are in need, for instance: Triner's Cough Sedative is the best for colds and coughs, and Triner's Liniment helps quickly in cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, sprains, etc.—Joseph Triner Company, 1333-43 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

25 MILLIONS!

"Cascarets" is biggest selling Laxative-Cathartic for Liver and Bowels

Twenty-five million boxes of Cascarets were sold last year to folks who wanted relief without injury, from Constipation, Bilioussness, Indigestion, Gases, Colds and Sick Headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without griping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They never weaken or shock the liver like calomel or harsh pills. Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

WEAK AND WORN?

Has winter left you dull, tired; all worn out? Do you have constant backache, with headaches, dizzy spells, sharp, shooting pains, or annoying kidney irregularities? Influenza and grip epidemics have left thousands with weak kidneys and failing strength. Don't wait until serious kidney trouble develops. Help the weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case

George Francis, Publisher, 267 Pope St., Du Quoin, Ill., says: "I had an awful attack of kidney trouble. I had such sharp, cutting pains in my back I could hardly straighten up. The kidney secretions were highly colored and passed irregularly. Every muscle in my back was sore and lame and I could hardly move without pain. A fellow workman suggested I use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's soon flushed out my kidneys and I felt like a different man." Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box.

BILLY GOAT & MR. FOX

MR. FOX was lazy; that his wife knew very well, but she had made up her mind that he should help her with her spring housecleaning if she had to starve him to it.

"You won't get a bite to eat," she said one morning, "until you clean my carpets and rugs. Now go to work, if you want your dinner, Reynard."

Out in the yard the rugs and carpets went with a bang and back to her work went Mrs. Fox.

Reynard got up slowly from the ground where he was sitting under a tree and sighed, for he knew it was work or no dinner.

He pulled the carpet on the clothesline and hung the rugs beside it, and just then Mr. Coon ran by, calling out that a flock of young turkeys were in the wood, and off ran Reynard with him.

One of Mrs. Fox's rugs happened to be a big goatskin, and as it hung on the line swinging in the wind, Billy Goat happened to pass by and see it.

Billy Goat gave a look at the rug and shook his horns. "If I could find the one who did that," he said, "I would avenge my poor relative. I wonder who lives here!"

Billy Goat looked around and not seeing anyone he took the goatskin and started to run away with it, but he had only gone as far as a clump of bushes when he saw some turkeys which Mrs. Fox had in a basket in the yard, and Billy changed his mind.

He hid the skin of his relative behind the bushes and very cautiously tiptoed up to the basket and ate up every one of Mrs. Fox's turkeys.

He felt pretty sleepy when he had finished this big meal, so instead of running home he crept behind a rock some distance from Mrs. Fox's house and went to sleep.

By and by Reynard came back from his run with Mr. Coon and as he did not wish his wife to see him, he dodged behind every rock and tree as he came near his house.

"Well! If there isn't Mrs. Fox's nice goatskin rug away over here," said Reynard. "It must have blown off the line; now, isn't it lucky I came around this way?"

Reynard grabbed the tail of what he thought was the rug, but it wasn't the rug at all; it was Billy Goat, asleep, with his head in the grass and his horns quite hidden.

Reynard dropped the tail almost as soon as he touched it, for Billy Goat jumped and turned on him.

"Oh! I thought you were my wife's goatskin rug!" he said as fast as he could talk.

"Oh! You did, did you?" said Billy Goat, lowering his head. "So you are the fellow who brought my poor relative to his sad end?"

"But let me tell you about it!" said Mr. Fox, as Billy Goat butted him over and over on the ground.

"I'll use all the butts that are needed to explain this situation," said Billy Goat. "I am the fellow who put the other 't' on that 'but' you want to tell me about. I know all about it."

Poor Reynard limped home, holding his back and sides, as he groaned with pain, but Mrs. Fox would not listen to anything he said. "If you had stayed there and done the work you would not have a lame back!" she said.

She made him clean the carpet and find the goatskin rug, which Billy Goat, in his hurry, forgot, before she gave her husband his dinner, and all through the woods could be heard the groaning of Reynard as he worked, but not a bit of sympathy did he get from Mrs. Fox.

LONG LASHES

LONG, thick eyelashes are to be desired not only because of their own beauty and the added character they lend the eye, but because they afford so much protection to the eye itself. They sift the dust from the air, minimizing the chances of getting painful particles into the eye, they shade the eye from strong lights and protect the sensitive nerves of sight.

Long lashes are comparatively easy to acquire. The first thing to do is to clip the lashes back a trifle, using fine embroidery or manicure scissors with the points held away from the eye. This is a delicate task, better done by some other person. Yet, if you lean close to the mirror you can do it yourself. The lash on both the upper and under lid should be clipped. This will make them grow in longer and thicker, too.

The eyebrows, too, will benefit by clipping, but this is something most women would hesitate about, as the short hairs would show more readily than on the lashes. Vaseline is about the best thing to use as a tonic, and is always the chief ingredient of expensive preparations.

The lashes should be clipped back once a month for at least three months. By this time, in connection with the use of a tonic, they will have sufficient stimulation to grow thick and long.

"TAKING STOCK"

Should Sentiment Always Have Precedence?

"Taking stock" of oneself is a periodical duty, probably not always practiced, and is as necessary as taking stock of your household effects or your "store goods." The right minded man will do this. In unmolested moments he gives way to deep meditation; he gathers his thoughts to ascertain if brains, energy, and ability are synopating properly, working together on lines that answer to an ambition that looks for a satisfactory return.

If there be a deficit, his endeavor should be to discover the leakage. It may be that he lacks the nerve to go into a retrospective analysis, or falls in initiative that will prompt him to throw his horoscope in the future. Unless he can do these things he will never be able to pull himself out of any "rut" in which his condition has placed him. He must "take stock."

"Stock taking" leads to modern-day efficiency, and is demanded of every worker if unsatisfactory conditions are to be overcome. In the case of the farmer it may be that he is working a "too high-priced farm"; interest and rent may be an "overhead" eating up the profits. There may be other reasons why profits are not shown. It is just possible that he is sacrificing profit and encouraging loss because of sentiment, but he does not realize that this is the cause. The farm was his birthplace; reared upon it, he knows every nook and corner of the old place. He fished in the brook, hunted squirrels in the woods, hid in the hayfield, grew to manhood upon the place, courted and married and brought up his family there. These are ties that commend themselves, and why shouldn't sentiment have a say? To many this will appeal. But are these good reasons to continue? Does not one owe it to himself and to his dependents to "take stock," and put in to effect action that will bring a balance on the credit side of the ledger—the balance that will bring happiness and give a comfort far greater than a mass of unpaid bills and a house full of worry, and a devotion to sentiment? Should he not look around for more favorable conditions, which may easily be found?

Procrastination is said to be a thief. In this case the axiom is undoubtedly true. To allow the adverse conditions under which you may be laboring to continue may keep you for years longer in the present unsatisfactory position.

There was a man at Brazil, Ind., who made weekly visits for upward of a year to the office of the Canadian government at Indianapolis, Ind., and from the agent secured all the information in Western Canada. But he lacked decision, did not "take stock," or if he took it, failed to act. This was fourteen years ago. He lived on a small farm, which gave him a mere existence and no promise of anything more. He is still on the same place and no better off today than then. He had a friend working in a glass factory, who also had but little means. He became interested in Western Canada. He possessed, though, spirit and action. With the impulse thus prompted he moved to Saskatchewan and took up a farm. Today he is the owner of a splendid section of land, has plenty of money in the bank, and could retire with a handsome competence.

That which has been the good fortune of the Brazil glass worker, who had "taken stock" and profited by it, may be that which will follow any other of like temperament and a firm wish to erect for a satisfactory future.

Western Canada submits for consideration and approval conditions in agricultural lines that are exceptional. There is land there that annually produces about the same return as any other farming land, and it can be purchased at but a portion of what the place which has not been a source of profit can be sold for. A section instead of a quarter-section, worked under western conditions, with no more effort, solves the big "overhead" expense. The social conditions, which are an important factor in deciding on a new home location, are ideal.—Advertisement.

"Not so fast. The man who lost the coat describes the fellow who took it as wearing a blue serge suit, tan shoes and a gray cloth hat. He gives his height as about five feet and eight inches; says he has slightly gray hair, is round-shouldered and has a wart on his chin, and concludes by giving the man's business address. I guess he'd better return that coat."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

GIVING NATURE FAIR CHANCE

Sluggard Quite Willing to Lie Abed While She Did a Good Job of Repair Work.

"Arise" we said in a tone admirably adapted for declamatory purposes was still slugging at an unconscionably late hour. "The lark is up to meet the sun. The bee is on the wing. Remember the manner in which the inexperienced schoolboy read aloud the admonition to Lucy: He had been taught that when he encountered two letters of the same kind he should pronounce them 'double-o,' or whatever they might be, instead of 'a,' 'o.' So he sternly recited, not 'Up, up, up, Lucy! The sun is in the sky, and so forth. Why do you not double up, and to your tasks away?"

"That is a very good story," replied the sluggard, "but it does not move me. We are told that nature does most of her repair work on us while we are in bed. It is my intention to lie here until she fixes me up so that I feel like going to work."—Kansas City Star.

FERTILE VALLEYS ONCE SEAS

Naturalists of Opinion They Were Laid Bare by Great Convulsions of Nature.

Many of the most fertile valleys and plains in the world appear to be an exit having been opened by some convulsion of nature, in some instances by mere gradual operations, for the waters that were previously enclosed by impenetrable barriers.

Most of the great rivers were formerly successions of lakes, like the St. Lawrence river in North America. The level spaces between the Allegheny mountains and other parallel chains appear to have been inland lakes, until the rivers which descend from these heights formed for themselves exits.

The Euxine and Caspian seas, as well as Lake Aral and several others, are the remains of an extensive sea, which covered the great part of the north of Asia, according to the belief of Peter Simon Pallas. It has been conjectured that the opening of the Bosphorus was the occasion of the draining of this ocean in the midst of Europe and Asia, the memory of this disruption of the two continents being preserved in the traditions of Greece.

Are you using an old engine burning gasoline that costs you about 25 cents every time you buy a gallon? If so figure a saving of 8 to 10 cents on every gallon, if you were burning kerosene. This is possible only with a highgrade engine that burns kerosene economically. Or are you using an old engine that needs overhauling thus losing power and wasting a few cents on every gallon of your high priced fuel. Will it pay you to overhaul the engine at the present price of labor and repairs? Or are you using a larger engine to do the work of a 1 1/2 or 3 H. P. engine using more fuel than necessary. Or are you doing without an engine and need one. Let us show you a high grade completely enclosed engine guaranteed to economically burn kerosene, equipped with a device to regulate the quantity of fuel burned according to the load, also has a magneto with a guarantee as strong as on any engine. Our samples will show you why you ought to own one. We are able to sell the engines we have contracted for at these prices:

The Simple System of Heating

IMAGINE the economy, imagine the convenience, imagine the comfort of heating your whole house—bedrooms, halls, stairways and all—from just ONE fire! Think what it means to do away with all the muss and fuss of handling coal and ashes in the living rooms! Think how healthful it is to have those chilly bedrooms and cold, drafty halls so warm that the children can run all over the house and the baby play on the floor without the danger of catching cold! Think what it means to have ALL THE HEAT YOU WANT IN EVERY ROOM and yet just one fire to tend—and that but twice a day!

Moore's Pipeless Furnace

—the SIMPLE SYSTEM OF HEATING—gives you all of these things and more. And the whole job of installation can be done in just ONE day. In addition—because of MOORE'S ANTI-CARBON FIRE-

POT (shown in the cut at the right) it saves you just 38 cents on every dollar's worth of fuel you use. For this fire-box BURNS the gas, smoke and soot that other heating systems WASTE. It will burn slack coal just as well as the best grade of lump. There are many other advantageous features in MOORE'S Pipeless Furnace, such as its Self-Cleaning Radiator, its large Moisture Pan, etc.—features that give you an even, moisture-laden warm atmosphere that is essential to good health. In fact MOORE'S is the Pipeless Furnace supreme—the best and simplest heating system that you can secure. Come in and let us explain all about it. Then—BE YOUR OWN JUDGE!
